DISARMAMENT DELEGATES

Hughes Expected To Head U. S. Members of Conclave

TO OPEN CONFERENCE

Lodge and Root Seen As Members—Lansing and Underwood Thought Likely As Democratic Delegates.

Washington, July 26.—With the major problems of the forthcoming disarmament congress in process of settlement, President Harding is turning his attention to the personnel of the American delegation, and it is expected in many quarters that his mind is about made up regarding a majority of the men who will compose this important mission.

Already the President has stated most emphatically that he will not be a member of the delegation, but this does not mean that he will have no hand in the proceedings. On the contrary, he is expected to open the conference with an address and to lay down the fundamental facts which prompted him to assemble representatives of the powers to deal with the vital question of limitation of armaments

Nor is it assumed for a moment here that Mr. Harding's decision not to head his own delegation will influence any Prime Minister against attending. It had been suggested that these heads of state would not care to parley with Americans not one of whom was of equal rank with a Prime Minister. The chief American commissioner, it is pointed out, acting as the spokesman for his Government, will enjoy sufficient distinction as a plenipotentiary to make conference with the head of any other government practical and successful.

No doubt is entertained in Washington that Secretary of State Chas. E. Hughes will head the American delegation. The only doubt resolves itself around his four or six colleagues, as the case may be. If a delegation of five is ramed, four of the number, it is stated in official circles, will be Republicans. If a delegation of seven is named, five will be Republicans.

Nor is there any question that Senator Lodge, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will be invited to sit as an American member of the conference. He may decline, particularly if Congress is in session. Also it is reasonably certain that former Secretary of State Elihu Root will be invited to be a member. If he should decline, Senator Knox, another former Secretary of State, in all probability will be asked to become a member. There are suggestions also that former Senator George Sutherland, of Utah, will be appointed. It seems certain that he will be if the delegation is composed of seven members.

Lawn Fete

Girl Scouts To Raise Funds For Camping Trip

Every healthy girl and boy wants to camp out in this hot weather. Indeed, the idea is the result of a perfectly normal impulse to go "back to nature," and thus renew the amount of "health stock" for the winter, with sunshine and fresh air. So the Girl Scouts of Alexandria would like a wonderful camping trip and feel that they need some of the big woods for a while; but their treasury only shows about one tenth of the needed amount. So it is planned to raise the other amount by a lawn fete to be given next week. At this party, where everyone will come out to enjoy themselves, several interesting stunts are to be shown, besides an attractive program for the general entertainment of guests. So procure your ticket early and plan on taking the family or friends along. Remember, every ticket means an investment in better, healthier girlhood for this community.

Woman Slayer Surrenders

Chicago, July 26.—Fearful that her six little children would be left without food or care, Mrs. Amelia Panico, who yesterday stabbed Mrs. Virginia Esposito to death, telephoned the police today that she would surrender. The police had let it be known about the neighborhod that unless the mother surrendered they would take the children to some institution.

It now appears that the killing, which is the twelfth in that immediate district since January, was the result of pealousy. It is said that Panico has been seen much with Mrs. Esposito ever since her husband was assassinated, and about two weeks ago Mrs. Panico heard of it. She followed her husband to Mrs. Esposito's home at that time, intending to kill her in his presence, but something arose to prevent. So she bided her time, and while the streets were full of the clamor of a wedding feast yesterday she sought out her rival and cut her to death. Mrs. Panico was carrying her youngest child in her arms at the time. She hastened home and left it with an aged granny and she and her husband disappeared.

FORTY-GALLON STILL IS DISCOVERED NEAR GOV. COOPER'S HOME

Greenville, S. C., July 26.—"It's a long time between drinks," said the governor of North Carolina to the governor of South Carolina, but the Tarheel executive knew little of his neighbor Commonwealth on the south.

The governor of South Carolina's answer is not on record, but if he had been Gov. Cooper he could have enlightened his colleague. For today one of the prettiest little 40-gallon stills ever seen in the "cawn licker" country was found within a few hundred yards of the governor's summer residence on Paris mountain and with it 1,000 gallons of beer."

Gov. Morrison of North Carolina has made no comment.

Soldier's Strange Injury

Boston, July 26.—Famous surgeons of Boston today examined Harry Shanley, war veteran, who, rendered deaf by the explosion of a German shell five years ago, has a passage through his head. He can pass small articles through his head, into one ear and out the other, or into his mouth and either ear. The physicians claim that Shanley's is one of the strangest and most interesting medical cases that has come out of the war.

Early in the war a German high explosive shell burst over Shanley's head, knocking him and 296 other soldiers to the ground. All were left deaf by the concussion, and Shanley is the only one of the group who did not lose power of speech also.

Major Frederick L. Bogan, former Yankee division surgeon and now attached to the Eye and Ear Hospital staff, declared yesterday he had examined Shanley, and there will be a consultation of Boston specialists next week, when X-rays will be taken to solve the mystery.

PROHIBITION CAUSING BIG INSANITY INCREASE

New York, July 26.—The stuff that sells for liquor has caused more insanity since prohibition was proclaimed in the United States tahn shell-shock and kindred influences caused during the war, it was asserted today by Dr. Perry M. Lichtenstein, resident physician at the Tombs.

He told a commission in lunacy, sitting in an assault case, that many cases of alcoholic insanity had come to his attention since prohibition. Poisonous substitutes absorbed by drinkers create a toxic condition which deadens and destroys the nervous system and produces alcoholic psychosis he aid.

SHAM BATTLE IS STAGED

Imaginary Fort at Playgrounds Captured By "Allies"

QUEER AMMUNITION

Tin Cans and Brick Bats Are Weapons Used To Conquer In Bombardment.

Mrs. T. L. Howard visited with her committee the playground on South Lee street that has just been opened under her department of Social Service of the Salvation Army, with Captain McIntyre in charge.

In order to clean the grounds a game was played where three groups of boys representing the French, the English and the United States troops advanced upon the Germans.

The Germans were supposed to be secreted behind a fort composed of trash, tin cans, brick bats, ect., and the allies advanced, using for ammunition every ca nand brick that was scattered upon the ground, and bombed the fort. After a first assault had been made the captain ordered up the various troops to attack separately and then a grand bombardment, with the result that the fort was conquered, the allies triumphant, and the grounds fairly well freed from rubbish. With a series of games of this nature the grounds will be in good condition.

The boys of the neighborhood are enthusiastic, while the mothers of the little ones are most grateful, and several were watching their children playing in the two sand piles that had been arranged for them, one is located under the big tree. A sliding board is soon to be placed and other inexpensive equipment will be arranged for, but the most essential factor is the teacher. Captain McIntyre is trained in this kind of work with boys and girls and knows a number of playground sports and games. He stated that the grounds would be supervised from 9:30 to 12 every morning and from 3 to 6:30 in the afternoon.

This means that during those hours the grounds will be in charge of a relisble person, Captain McIntyre will either be there himself or will have a trained substitute.

The quick responsiveness of the captain to forward any plans that Mrs. Howard lays before him that deals with her department is most inspiring, and such a trained, efficient worker is appreciated by the entire board.

In addition to this daytime work on theplaygrounds every Thursday night the captain holds an open air Salvation Army service on this ground, with the Salvation Army band always present.

Bandits Rob Warehouse

Philadelphia, July 26.—Whiskey and liquors worth $50,000 were stolen early today from the warehouse of Morris Schiff, at Frankford. About twenty-two men took part, 13 were white and the others were colored. According to the police, the white men stood in two lines of guards while the colored men raided the place. The whiskey bandits who stood guard menaced with revolvers several persons who were aroused.

Today Schiff declared he could not see how the robbery could have been successful unless there was some connivance between police and the crooks. He asserted he would call on Superintendent Mills and lay that phase of the case before him.

"I have paid police to keep a watch on my place," he declared, "as attempts were made to rob it twice before."

The robbers used two motor-trucks and two touring cars. In them they hauled away 45 cases and 35 barrels of liquors and wines. It is said the robbery was carried out with military precision. The 13 armed white men posted themselves as sentries to prevent possible interruption, stringing themselves out for a block along the street approaching the warehouse.

A Quart of Milk

Indirectly Responsible For White And Colored Woman Engaging In Personal Encounter

An innocent looking quart of milk was indirectly responsible for an altercation between a white and colored woman in the northwestern section of the city yesterday and the last act of the drama was enacted in the police court this morning when the court fined the white woman $5 for assault.

The story starts with the purchase of a quart of milk by a colored woamn from her grocer. She claimed it was sour and returned it by a child. The grocer said it looked as if water had been placed in the milk. The woman who sent the milk back came down to investigate. This resulted in some conversation. Two from in front of the store. The colored women were next ordered white woman at the store claimed that the colored woman called her ugly names. She used a stick over the colored woman and there was some hair pulling. The grocer took the part of peacemaker. The colored woman resorted to a warrant with the foregoing effect and all over one quart of milk.

SOUTH TO BE GIVEN AID

President Harding Alarmed at Famine-Plague Reports

PELLAGRA RAVISHES

Public Health Service Says Probably 10,000 Will Die of Disease—Writes Red Cross.

Washington, July 26.—Alarmed at reports of a threatened "semi-famine," coupled with an epidemic of pellagra, in a large section of the Southern cotton belt, President Harding today requested both the Public Health Service and the American Red Cross to make immediate investigation and report what could be done by the Federal Government to relieve the situation.

The fullest co-operation of all Federal agencies in the relief measures was promised by the President, who declared that if found necessary Congress would be asked to pass special legislation. He urged that no time be lost in ascertaining the actual conditions and applying to them effective remedy.

The threat of "famine and plague" the President wrote to the Health Service and the Red Cross, seemed to arise from the fact that depressed markets had made it impossible for the people of a large section of the south to sell their stocks of cotton. The resulting shortage of money, he said, apparently had deprived many thousands of the variety of food necessary to ward off pellagra.

The President in his letter to Surgeon-General Cumming said:

"I have been greatly concerned to note the public statement from the Public Health Service as to the menace of pellagra and condition of at least semi-famine in a large section of the cotton belt. That such a condition is obviously a temporary incident to the economic dislocation following the war cannot lessen our concern. Famine and plague are words almost foreign to our American vocabulary, save as we have learned their meaning in connection with the afflictions of lands less favored and toward which our people have as many times displayed large and generous charity. "Immediate and effective measures of amelioration are manifestly demanded if conditions even approximate the gravity suggested by the public health report. It is unthinkable that we should delay for a single day the institution of such measures. Therefore, I am writing to ask you for the most complete possible report that can be made at once provided there is anything to add to what you have already made public—especially for suggestion of proper measures to deal with the situation.

DANTE ANNIVERSARY

Probably, if a consensus of opinon were to be taken among the leading scholars of the civilized world today, as to the four greatest names in literature during the past two thousand years, one of the four to receive a unanimous vote would be Italian Dante, whose tomb is at Ravenna. While there might be argument and difference of opinion as to the other three, there would be none as to the immortal poet, the six hundredth anniversary of whose death will be commemorated in October of this year.

The "Divina Commedia" has been termed the archetype of all Christian poetry. One of the great commentators on Dante says that "this poem embodies the "Catholic view of life, and for this reason is all the more wholesome for study by modern Protestants. The threefold future world—Inferno, Purgatorio, Paradiso—presents us the exhaustive picture of man's relations to his deeds. The Protestant future life omits the Purgatory, but includes the Inferno and Paradise. What has become of this missing link in modern Protestant Art? This inquiry is a pertinent one, for there is no subject connected with the relation of Religion to Art which is so fertile in suggestive insights to the investigator."

Dante discovered all human life stripped of its wrappings. The deeds of man in their threefold aspect are judged in this "mystic, unfathomable poem." Human responsibility is its keynote. Whatsoever a man does he does to himself. If he does violence, he injures himself. If he works righteously, he creates a paradise for himself. By the Divine Purpose of the Universe—by the Absolute—every deed is seen in its true light, in the entire compass of its effects. Man's deeds, placed under the form of Eternity, sub specie eternitatis, return into himself. This is the final adjustment, the "end of all things,"—the Last Judgment. And this judgment is now and always the only actual Fact in the world.

Sin is indissolubly bound up in pain. The sinner, so far forth and so long as he is a sinner—shall be tormented forever, for we are now and always in Eternity. "Every one of us"—says Carlyle,—"is a Ghost. Sweep away the Illusion of Time; glance from the near-moving cause to its far-distant mover; compress the threescore years into three minutes,—are we not spirits that are shaped into a body, into an Appearance, and that fade away again into air and invisibility? We start out of Nothingness, take figure, and are apparitions; round us, as round the veriest spectre, is Eternity; and to Eternity minutes are as years and eons.

The Dante Bibliography is enormous; a whole library could be formed alone of his commentators. He is worthy of years of study. No one can lay claim to culture who is not more or less familiar with his works. He is one of the great luminaries, shining through the ages, whose rays were kindled at the Divine Source for the guidance of mankind.

BRITISH SQUADRON.

The British squadron in our river were on Thursday at 3 o'clock at anchor between Blackstone and George's Islands. Of the former they had possession and sunk wells,—the force about 26 sail, including transports. Several re-inforcements had been added to the fleet within a few days. It was reported that Sir S. Smith had joined them. No landing or attempts to land had been made on the Maryland shore, since the one near Cob's Point; nor did they show any disposition to molest the inhabitants. Two brigs and a schooner, only, had been up as far as the Narrows; two barges had gone above, but done no injury.

The president of the United States, in conformity with a resolution of both Houses of Congress, has issued his proclamation, recommending that the second Thursday in September, next, be observed throughout the United States as a day of HUMILIATION AND PRAYER.

BOY PIONEERS OFF FOR CAMP

Parents intending to visit their boys at the camp this Sunday, which is visitors day, should notify Secretary Wallace if they intend to have dinner there. A train leaves St. Elmo at 9:44 a. m., Sunday and one returns from Leesburg at 6:23 that evening, going through to Georgetown. Visitors should get off at Compher Station, this side of Leesburg. SPORTS

The Vinegar Hill ("Aggravators" on Sunday afternoon defeated the Locust Grove "All Stars" by the score of 11 to 0.

The game was interesting through out, both teams playing well but the score tells its own story. White, on the mound for the Aggravators was invincible, receiving Sterling support from his team mates on the few occasions when his opponents solved his difficult shots and connected.

On the other hand the local Aggravators had blood in their eyes, everything looked good to them and the good support of the opposing pitcher was unable to overcome the good judgment of the local boys in placing the ball in safe territory on numerous occasions.

Dodd and Grover led the bat fest with home runs. Grover making the longest drive seen around here this season, driving the ball over the top of the pines in deep left field. It was a terrific smash and the opposing team looked on in open mouth wonder.

These boys are playing good ball for a newly organiezd team and would like to arrange games with local teams.

LIQUID LABELED "WINE" KILLS FOUR

Chicago, July 26.—Six men working in the Illinois Central freight-house discovered a paper carton labeled "Wine, 34 per cent." It was part of a shipment from Parke, Davis and Co., Detroit chemists, to New Orleans. The men prepared for a "bacchanalian feast." They drank three of the twelve bottles in the carton. They used tin cups from the water cooler. Four of them died in agony; the remaining two are fighting for their lives.

Such was the tragedy disclosed today by the police who have been working on the poisoning of the six men since July 12 at the direction of Coroner Peter M. Hoffman.

"The men drank wine of colchicum seed," said Coroner Hoffman. "It can be bought at any drug store An adult dose is a third of a teaspoonful. The six men drank 720 doses. I think the government should prohibit the shipment of such drugs bearing 'wine' on the labels. They should be marked 'poison.'"

The four men who died were Albert Sturgis, P. J. Coffey, Thomas BMarrett and Michael Ward. The two survivors are John D. O'Neil and William Sippel. It was O'Neil who confessed to breaking open the drug shipment.

More interest perhaps centers in the appointment of the Democratic member or members. As already stated, it will be a four-one or a five two commission, as between the two parties. Former Secretary of State Robert Lansing is looked upon in Washington as perhaps the most available Democrat from an Administration standpoint for this service Besides being a Democrat and a former Cabinet officer, he is now sufficiently estranged from the Woodrow Wilson group to satisfy the most exacting Republican partisan. Senator Underwood, the Democratic floor leader of the Senate, also is looked upon as a probable member. If there are two Democrats selected these two men will be invited to sit, it is generally believed.

It became known today that friends of John Barrett, former Director-General of the Pan-American Union, had suggested him for secretary-general of the conference, first because of his wide experienc in such conclaves and because of his well-known familiarity with all the delicate proprieties involved in entertaining foreigners.

It was stated at the Department of State today that with many of original problems of the conference dealth with, the department officials had found time to give attention to the mechanical phases of the business. The question of properly quartering the visiting delegations has come up, also the question of providing efficient interpreters and stenograpehrs who can "take" notes in various languages. The official language of the conference will be English, it is stated. The official language of the Peace Conference was French.

The question of a possible postponement of the conference is still unsettled. The British seem to be holding out for a later date than November, but the State Department has no recent communication from London on the subejct. Meanwhile the matter of formal invitations is being held up.

It is clearly indicated at the State Department today that officials of the Administration were confident that Japan had been reassured as to all questions which affect her vitally and that eventually, if not in the near future, she will express her willingness to enter the conference without reservations.

OSTEOPATHS TO HEAR WITNESS FOR STILLMAN

Cleveland, July 25.—Osteopaths from all over the country were gath ered here today for the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Amer ican Osteopath Association, which opsn today. One of the principal subjects to come before the delegates will be the discussion of ethics.

An investigation to determine whether Dr. Hugh L. Russell, of Buffalo, violated ethical standards when he testified in the Stillman divorce case is to be demanded, it is declared. Dr. Russell has said he gave the testimony only after being so instructed by the court. He is expected to attend the convention to explain his position.

"I am also writing to Dr. Livingston Farrand, head of the American Red Cross, in the same tenor, and I wish you both to be assured of my co-operation and of all aid that can appropriately be given through the executive departments, and to know that if full information about the situation shall make apparent that legislative action is necessary, I will on a proper showing be prepared to ask the requisite authorization from the Congress."

In his letter to Dr. Farrand Mr. Harding said:

"Recent reports of a distressing condition among the rural population in a large section of the cotton belt indicate that, due to the depressed cotton market, many thousands of people are unable to sell their one product for money wherewith to obtain a necessary variety of wholesome food and that there is grave threat of an epidemic of pellegra.

"It must bring a shock to the American people to realize that a great section of their own country which they are wont to think of as immune from such experiences is actually menaced with famine and plague. For that is what it would be called if it should befall in any country, and we may as well give it its right name. It is of course a consequence of the economic disorganization following the war, and it demands instant and vigorous attention. Our people, so long and so often moved by splendid charitableness toward the unfortunates of other lands, will never permit such an affliction here at home.

"Moved by a realization that there must be no delay in coping with such a condition, I am writing to ask you if the Red Cross can make an immediate investigation and report the present situation, the outlook for the future and the measures necessary for prompt and effective relief."

Latest reports received by the Public Health Service were said to indicate that pellagra this year in the cotton belt would claim about 100,000 victims, of whom it was estimated 10 per cent. would die.

Moundsville, W. Va.—"I had taken doctor's medicine for nearly two years because my periods were irregular, came every two weeks, and I would suffer with bearing-down pains. A lady told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how much good it had done her daughter, so I took it and now I am regular every month and have no pain at all. I recommend your medicine to everyone and you may publish my testimonial, hoping that the Vegetable Compound does some other girl the good it has done me."—Mrs. GEORGE TEGARDEN, 915 Third Street, Moundsville, W. DODSON SOUNDS CALOMEL'S DOOM

The 'Liver Tone' Man Warns Folks Against the Sickening, Salivating Drug

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you lose a day.

Calomel is mercury! When it comes into contact with sour bile, it crashes into it, breaking it up. Then is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish, if liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous, go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it can not saivate or make you sick.

MAN AND WIFE SHOT

Akron, Ohio, July 25.—Patrolman Paul C. Trotter, 27, and his wife, Lessie B. Trotter, 25, were mysteriously shot to death today with the policeman's revolver. Police had not decided last night whether it was a case of double suicide or a case of murder and suicide.

Investigation has led to two theories. One is that Mrs. Trotter fired the shot which killed her husabnd and then shot herself. Another is that Trotter shot himself, and, after witnessing the deed, Mrs. Trotter seiezd the weapon and utrned it upon herself.

There's pleasure in cooking in a cool kitchen

WHEN your cooking is done with a New Perfection Oil Cook Stove the kitchen isn't made uncomfortably hot. All the heat you need is ready, just when and where you want it—there is none lost. You regulate it by simply turning the wick up or down a trifle.

That's why it's so easy with ordinary cooking experience to make light fluffy cakes, crisply crusted pies and toothsome cookies. The New Perfection Oven is up where you can reach it conveniently and look into it easily.

It's a pleasure, too, to be relieved of coal and wood carrying, of sweeping around and under the hod and wood basket or box. A small dust-rag takes the place of the stove blacking brush.

Always be sure to adjust the wick so that the flame has long white tips. These give you the most heat. Another feature of the New Perfection is its long blue chimney. This drives all the heat up to the cooking utensils and doesn't soot up the bottoms of them. Insures complete burning of every drop of oil; none is wasted.

New Perfections are made in five, four, three, two and one-burner sizes. Most buyers select them equipped with the warming cabinet.

Use Aladdin Security Oil for best results; it's always clean and dependable.

New Perfection Oil Cook Stoves are sold at most department, furniture and hardware stores.

LAUGHS

The teacher had asked, "Why did David say he would rather be a doorkeeper in the house of the Lord?"
"Because," answered a boy, "he could then walk outside while the sermon was being preached."—Boston Transcript.

School-Teacher (to little boy)—"If a farmer raises 3,700 bushels of wheat and sells it for $2.50 per bushel, what will he get?"
Little Boy—"An automobile."—Western Christian Advocate (Cincinnati).

Two Tommies turned punsters went into a restaurant over on the eastern front and said to the waiter, "We want Turkey with Greece."
The waiter replied, "Sorry, sirs, but we can't Servia."
"Well, then, get the Bosphorus."
The boss came in and heard their order and then said, "I don't want to Russia, but you can't Roumania." So the two Tommies went away Hungary.—Commerce and Finance.

Pianist Rachmaninoff told in his New York flat the other day a story about his boyhood.
"When I was a very little fellow," he said, "I played at a reception at a Russian count's, and, for an urchin of seven, I flatter myself that I swung through Beethoven's 'Kreutzer Sonata' pretty successfully.
"The 'Kreutzer,' you know, has in it several long and impressive rests. Well, in one of these rests the count's wife, a motherly old lady, leaned forward, patted me on the shoulder, and said:
" 'Play us something you know, dear.' "—The Christian Advocate.

"Aw," said Willie, "you're afraid to fight; that's all it is."
"No, I'm not," protested Jack, "but if I fight my ma'll find it out and lick me."
"How'll she find it out?"
"She'll see the doctor goin' to your house."—O. E. R. Bulletin.

During a campaign preceding the election of a Missouri Congressman it was suggested that, since he posed as a good business man, he might be willing to tell just what a good business man is.
"That's easy," he explained. "A good business man is one who can buy goods from a Scotchman and sell them to a Jew—at a profit!"—The Alabama Baptist.

A red-headed boy applied for a job in a butcher-shop. "How much will you give me?"
"Three dollars a week; but what can you do to make yourself useful around a butcher-shop?"
"Anything."
"Well, be specific. Can you dress a chicken?"
"Not on three dollars a week," said the boy.—O. E. R. Bulletin.

An Irishman was handling dynamite in a quarry. He let a stick drop, and the whole box went up, taking Mike with it. The quarry boss came around later and said to another Irishman:
"Where is Mike?"
"He's gone," replied Pat.
"When will he be back?" asked the boss.
"Well," replied Pat, "if he comes back as fast as he went, he'll be back yesterday."—O. E. R. Bulletin.

The baseball fan takes his small daughter to see her first (and last) game:
"See that place in the center? That's called the diamond."
"Daddy, can I have an ice-cream cone?"
"That beautiful lawn is the outfield."
"Why can't we sit down there on those other seats?"
"That man in the blue suit is the umpire."
"Daddy, I want an almond bar."
"That bell means that the game is going to start."
"What has that man with the white coat and hat got in his basket?"
"Watch that man with the bat; he's trying to hit the ball."
"What does it say on those flags over there?"
"Where the man stands is called the home plate."
"Daddy, that fat man bought some popcorn! Why don't you buy some, daddy?"
"Watch the ball; see it go?"
"Daddy, why don't you buy some popcorn?"
"See that man catch the ball? That's one out."
"It says 'Peanuts' on that man's hat, daddy."
"Let's go."

PANHANDLER IS NIPPED BY VICTIM

Champion of Park Row, New York, Whither the Best Flock, Is Forced to Yield.

HE HAD A STORY THAT WON

New Londoner, His Pocket Picked, Wanted Only Dollar to Get to Rich Relatives in Perth Amboy, and Got It.

New York.—There recently landed right out in the middle of Park row a well-dressed, smooth-talking person who, in a few short weeks, has done a creditable job in making that thoroughfare live up to its other name—Panhandlers' Range. The first time he was sighted by the only victim to whom he is known to have repaid a "touch" he was sprinting west in Chambers street. A few hundred feet away, he was noticed searching wildly through his pockets and registering simultaneously impatience, embarrassment and chagrin.

"What do you think about that?" he appealed to the victim as he rushed and halted. "Some pocket-picking cuss has grabbed my roll!"

"You might have lost it," the victim suggested.

The well-dressed man was relieved—vastly relieved. "Glad you mentioned that," he observed, blocking the other's progress east. "Gives me the creeps to think some guy had his hand in my pocket. At that I'm careless—very careless. If I had less money I might be more careful."

At that the victim, not knowing he was about to be bled and thinking himself slightly outclassed financially, started on his way, only to be recalled by the stranger.

Tale That Brings Coin.

"Are you from New Jersey?" asked the man. "I ask," he went on hurriedly at the other's negative shake of the head, "because I'm well known over there. Well-to-do family and all that sort of thing—uncle way up in Democratic politics over in Jersey City—another one down at Perth Amboy. My name's Doeley, and if you had known anyone over in Jersey I was going to ask you to lend me a dollar until I could get some money."

The victim's hand slid toward his pocket. "I haven't—" he began.

"That's all right, old man," said Doeley—that isn't quite his right name, by the way—"don't let my troubles worry you. As a matter of fact I won't need a whole dollar. I only need one way fare to Perth Amboy. I'll be coming right back through New York to go to my own home in New London, and—"

Something in the victim's expression told him that he had named a locality that was familiar. "You know people in New London?" he asked.

"A few."

"Do you know—?" he began, mentioning the name of a friend of the victim. And upon being told the name was familiar, he ran through a list of New Londoners that was almost a complete directory of one part of the town. "Isn't it fortunate that I've met a fellow who knows people I know," Doeley continued affably, and he laid his hand on the victim's shoulder. He proceeded to enumerate the eccentricities of one of the victim's New London friends and raking his memory again, spoke of the trick automobile another used to own.

Doeley Lands His Dollar.

The connection was made and Doeley played for his dollar. Eventually he got it.

"I'll be through New York in exactly three hours," he called over his shoulder as he sped toward the West side ferries. "I'll look you up and we can go to supper together before I run for the Federal Express. You all-night workers are a bunch of good old scouts. S'long."

It wasn't until eleven o'clock that night, an hour after Doeley said he would appear on deck with a roll that the victim, one of the night workers who knew better than to believe everything he hears up and down Park Row, looked down on Broadway and confided to a friend that he was waiting for a man from New London, a well-dressed lad with the gift of gab who had had his pocket picked while spending a day in woolly New York.

"Sa-a-ay," said the friend, "this New London bird wasn't on his way to Perth Amboy to get some jack from a wealthy uncle, was he?"

The victim, then just beginning to surmise the worst, nodded. For the next three days he continued to hear the stories of other victims who "fell" for the story of the stolen roll and the high family ties and Perth Amboy and everything.

In the stories of ordinary panhandlers' "suckers" there would be nothing further to remark. In this one, however, there was a sequel.

It was four o'clock on a Sunday morning and the victim mentioned in Part 1 and another night working pal were sitting in one of the most luxurious armchairs that could be found in several years' inspection. They had just completed a general free-for-all discussion of the ability of various panhandlers when the door was thrust violently open by two men. The newcomers proceeded to the counter; one invited the other to order anything he wanted.

"Have a couple of ham-and sandwiches, Mr. Doeley," he urged. "They'll do you good and you'll need them to hold you over until you reach New London."

That Well-Remembered Voice.

"Perth Amboy," the other corrected, "New London later on."

The victim turned slowly. He wasn't mistaken. He couldn't forget that face nor the thick-rimmed spectacles perched on the—now that he noticed it—rather pre-Volsteadian nose. His inclination was to do something that would measure up to the statute that covers felonies, but waited until Doeley and his latest "sucker" were well on their way to the end of the meal. Then he walked over, his pal bringing up a strong rear.

"Hello Doeley," he said in greeting. "How about that buck?"

"You've certainly got the advantage of me," Doeley answered in a voice that had its root in the Social Register. "You certainly have. I guess I've got a standard face."

"No you haven't," the ham-and eater was told. "As a matter of fact you have a rather successful face."

Doeley stood on his dignity until a bit of paper upon which he had written his name and an address and telephone number in New London were produced. Then his eyes popped out at least three-quarters of an inch. Either one of them would have served to hold a hat or a coat.

"Sure enough," he laughed. "You're the fellow who was kind enough to let me have a dollar the other night."

"Yes," said the victim, "and you were going to stop in with it on your way back to New London."

"Right. And I haven't got started back yet. Had some business to attend to—shipping board stuff—owe me a lot of money—you understand."

The victim nodded. "I understand," he agreed.

A Fast and Agile Talker.

"And I've mislaid your address. Can't find it anywhere. Left it in one of my other suits, I guess."

Again the victim nodded. He understood. "But you can slip it to me now," he suggested. "You must have been down to see your—was it your uncle?"

Doeley was breathing jerkily by that time, but he was able to explain that he had let his wallet tumble out of his pocket while riding across the Brooklyn bridge.

"Yes, he was riding across the bridge," his "sucker" interposed. "And I've promised to let him have enough to get to Perth Amboy."

In the ten minutes that followed the first victim informed the new stranger that Doeley had already lost his pocketbook or had his pockets picked nine times at least within ten days.

"I don't care," said the new one. "I've promised to give him $2 and as a matter of principle I'm going to keep the promise. I'm going to hand him two dollar bills right now and beat it back to Paterson, and if you want to hit him over the dome with a mustard pot or something and take one of them, it's no concern of mine."

Doeley got the two dollars and surrendered one to the victim who had found him out.

"Take it," he said, "and we'll be good friends."

As the successful victim and his pal walked out of the restaurant, the pal turned.

"You certainly went to a million dollars' worth of trouble for one berry, old top," he observed. "Any one'd think you borrowed it to—"

"Lay off," said the victim. "I did."

WHITE HOUSE SILVER TAKEN

Many Valuable Pieces Are Missing After Each Tea in the Executive Mansion.

Washington.—People who attend White House teas are above any such thing, of course, but——

The fact remains that many pieces of White House silver have vanished after each tea. The silver is engraved with the words, "The President's House," and bears an especially attractive pattern.

Its disappearance has created a serious, not to say delicate, situation for President and Mrs. Harding. Thus far they have discovered no way out of the dilemma.

It would be improper, of course, to have secret service men search the departing guests.

Warned of "Puncture Vine."

Washington.—Motorists, beware the tribulus terrestris! Government weed sharps issued a warning against the "puncture vine" of the West and Southwest, an undesirable immigrant from southern Europe which probably stowed away in the fleece of sheep to reach this country. A California man, the report said, reported 70 punctures in one tire, committed by tribulus terrestris.

Finds Tooth of Fish That Was Big as Steamer

Los Angeles, Cal.—A tooth of some prehistoric fish, so large as to indicate its owner's size was nearly that of an ocean liner, has been found among other fossils in the lime pits at Terrance, near here.

About one-third of the tooth is missing. The portion found weighs nearly two pounds, is five inches long, four inches across the base and almost two inches thick.

Many bones of prehistoric animals are daily being taken from the pits.

Keep Your Blood Pure In Summer

Many fever epidemics are caused by impurities in the water supply and are ended only when the water is purified. Likewise, many blood disorders such as eczema, tetter, pimples, boils, blackheads and Rheumatism are caused by impurities in the blood supply and can be stopped only when these are driven out. Enrich your blood and keep it pure by taking S. S. S. You could have no better health insurance.
